

PERU'S PRESIDENT-BROTHER ASSASSINATED AS HE LEAVES RACE TRACK AFTER REVIEW Wife of City Official F and Hanged in Home

MRS. L. A. JAMES DISCOVERED DEAD BY HER HUSBAND

Assistant City Comptroller Forces Entrance Into Home After Failing To Get Response and Finds Body.

PICTURE CORD USED IN DEATH

Was in Ill Health During Past Two Years, After Suffering Stroke, Police Are Informed.

Mrs. Bessie James, 51, wife of Assistant City Comptroller Lawrence A. James, late Sunday afternoon was found dead from hanging in the bathroom of the James home at 730 Park drive, N. E. Discovery of the death was made by her husband on his return home from carrying their daughter to visit some friends.

Receiving no answer to his call when he returned home from taking the daughters, Misses Sarah James, and Bettie James, to an address on Frederick, James investigated and found the bathroom door locked. On opening the door with the aid of a fire tool, he found his wife's body hanging from the shower bath curtain holder, it was said.

James called Dr. Samuel Green, who lives near by at 712 Park drive, and sent in a hurry call to the fire department for the pulmotor squad after cutting down the body and placing it on the bed. Death had already occurred, however, it was said.

Police were told that Mrs. James had been in ill health since suffering a stroke a year ago. She apparently was in good spirits Sunday afternoon when James left home with the daughters, it was said.

Mrs. James was the daughter of John H. Goldsmith, former city comptroller, who was succeeded 25 years ago by B. Graham West. Mr. and Mrs. James were married January 24, 1905. She was a native Atlantan and her family pioneered in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. James moved to the Boulevard Park section 15 years ago and became leading spirits in improvement of the section. Mrs. James served as vice president of the Boulevard Park Women's Club for a while, and, with her husband, helped to organize the Boulevard Park Civic Club. She was a member of Alfred H. Colquitt chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy. Her membership was in the First Baptist church and the Good Samaritan Bible class.

In addition to her husband and daughters, Mrs. James is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Cole, of Newnan, and Mrs. Hattie Risley and Mrs. Ira DeLaughter, of Atlanta; a niece, Mrs. Turner Goldsmith; a sister-in-law, Mrs. Turner Goldsmith; and numerous other relatives. Her mother was Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Teers Goldsmith, who came to Atlanta from Virginia.

Coroner Paul Donohoe was notified and said that an inquest will be held, probably today. Funeral arrangements will be announced later by Awtrey & Lowndes.

Girl, 6, Spends $110 In Four-Hour 'Spree'

YONKERS, N. Y., April 30.—(AP) Bertha Deshey will probably never know the answer to the question: How long would it take a six-year-old girl to spend $110?

Bertha got only as far as $110, in four hours flat, when police intervened.

Robert Deshey, contractor, left a roll of $130 in large bills in a conspicuous place in his home. Bertha found it. Out of the house she skipped with her "treasure," and launched forth on a candy and soda pop spree.

From store to store went Bertha, with most of her playmates in tow. They bought gum, candy, ice cream sodas and food until they could eat and drink no more. Then they started in on souvenirs, trinkets and toys. They were changing bills for coins and weighing themselves when police, called by a suspicious merchant, stepped in.

Detectives tonight were trying to learn whether anyone had swindled Bertha out of any of her wealth.

PRESIDENT SEEKS TO CLEAR PATH FOR JOB RELIEF

House Democratic Chiefs Determined To Obtain Approval for Inflation Within Few Days.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP)—A democratic congress will drive for final action this week on the administration's gigantic farm relief-mortgage refinancing-inflation program to clear the way for President Roosevelt's proposals for a broad public works-emergency relief program.

The program, which would give the government power to negotiate reciprocal tariffs with foreign nations.

House democratic leaders gave notice today they would resort to every means to speed the farm relief bill to conference tomorrow after forcing a vote on the inflation provision—the preliminary situation permitting.

They expressed hope of an early agreement with the senate to make the bill law and rush it into operation.

Most of the Roosevelt legislative program already is well advanced down the legislative road. Pressure is being brought nevertheless on democratic congressional chiefs for swift action in view of the president's desire that the special session adjourn early in June before the world economic conference gets under way in London.

Tariff Truce Proposal Is Approved by French

Dispatch to Herriot at Sea From Paris Completely Agrees to Terms of Plan Outlined During White House Conversations.

ABOARD S. S. ILE DE FRANCE.
EN ROUTE TO FRANCE, April 30, (UP)—Former Premier Edouard Herriot, head of the French mission to America, received a radiogram from the French government tonight, completely agreeing to the terms of the Franco-American tariff truce as drafted during his conversations with President Roosevelt.

The dispatch from Paris to Herriot said the tariff truce with the United States provided:

1. No tariff increases until the opening of the world economic conference at London on June 12.

2. France is at liberty to apply a compensating surtax after June 12 if the dollar falls.

Herriot emphasized in discussing the dispatch with the United States that the tariff truce was the only practical result of his Washington visit.

The message from his government congratulated him warmly and approved of his actions while in the United States.

Herriot, in an interview, attached the utmost importance to Mr. Roosevelt's willingness to agree to a move for permanent arms control as a step toward world disarmament.

The French feel that this departure from traditional aloofness toward entangling alliances really is the greatest post-war change made in the United States' foreign policy. They expect

MANCHUKUO ACT REVIVES RUMOR OF RUSSO-JAP WAR

Tokyo-Sponsored State Challenges Soviet Ownership of Railroad in Northern Manchuria.

MOSCOW, April 30.—(UP)—Word that Manchukuo officially disputed Moscow's sole ownership of the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchuria today added to the Russo-Japanese war talk recurrent here.

The Soviet union's ownership of the railway in north Manchuria, center of the controversy, hitherto had been unchallenged. The Manchukuo authorities merely had denounced the soviets, charging them with seizing C. E. R. rolling stock and keeping it across the border in Siberia.

Concordance made public today indicates that Li Shao-keng, Manchukuo's director of the jointly operated railway, last week denied soviet ownership of the line and accused the soviets of administration with "lawless and one-sided actions."

In response, Vice Chairman Kuznetsov, of the Chinese Eastern railway, described soviet ownership as "an indisputable fact, acknowledged by all the documents."

He cited the Mukden and Peiping (then Peking) treaties giving China the right to buy the railway, under certain conditions. These treaties, signed in 1924 with the then soviet government, provided that the railway be operated by a joint Russo-Chinese company, with the soviets owning 51 per cent and the Manchukuo 49 per cent.

Kuznetsov argued that China's agreement at that time to buy the railway from Moscow constituted the clearest confirmation of soviet ownership, and added that attempts to cast doubt "impair the most serious anxiety of the governments at Moscow to destroy both the above-mentioned treaties, which are the basis of collaboration and mutual administration of the railway."

In political circles, it was frankly admitted that the conflict is surcharged with danger.

Assassinated

LUIS M. SANCHEZ CERRO, President of Peru.

SANCHEZ CERRO SHOT TO DEATH AS AIDS WATCH

Gen. Oscar R. Benavides, Chief Executive in 1914, Is Elected Successor by Congress Shortly After Tragedy.

ASSASSIN IS SLAIN FOLLOWING ATTACK

President Felled Just After Completing Inspection of Recruit Army of 20,000 at Santa Beatriz.

By RICARDO P. LEON.
LIMA, Peru, April 30.—(UP)—President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro, dynamic little Indian veteran of three revolutions, was shot to death by an assassin at Santa Beatriz race track today.

The assassin, Abelardo Hurtado de Mendoza, a member of the apra party, which had been bitterly fought by the president, was himself killed in a general shooting melee in which two soldiers were killed and one officer, five soldiers and a civilian wounded.

Action to fill the presidency was taken immediately. The cabinet met, framed an official announcement of the assassination, and assumed the executive power.

Congress met a short time later and General Oscar R. Benavides, who was president in 1914, was elected president by 81 votes to 7. He took office at 7 p. m. Benavides has been head of the combined military forces of Peru.

Congress passed a motion declaring three days of national mourning, starting tomorrow, and asked the citizens to co-operate to preserve public order. Sanchez Cerro, the congress declared, "deserved national gratitude."

Several others were reported to have participated in some way in the attack on the president.

Sanchez Cerro was just driving away from the race track in an open automobile, after presiding over army recruits, when De Mendoza stepped up beside the car and began firing.

The president slumped in his seat. A civil guard captain got in front of the assassin and was wounded. Members of the president's staff drew revolvers and began shooting and troops lined up on either side of the street began to fire.

Wild shots sent the huge crowd scattering to a safety. A civilian fell. The president's chauffeur drove away as soon as he realized what was happening. The president, supported in the arms of a soldier, was taken to the Santa Beatriz hospital, where he died at 1:05 p. m. He was shot near the heart.

Fortunato Dedoya, an army officer, who was himself wounded, said that he shot De Mendoza first. Other bullets struck the assassin and a lanceer pierced him with his lance.

Dedoya said he saw De Mendoza, a small man dressed in black, approach the president's car as it was coming slowly away from the track. The president, who was wearing his right hand and bowing to the crowd, De Mendoza thought the man was approaching the car to cheer Sanchez Cerro, but he suddenly whipped out a pistol and began firing.

The M. Sanchez Cerro, president of Peru, was 43 years old. He was inducted into office in December.

TROOPS ROUND UP MEMBERS OF MOB THAT BEAT JUDGE

Iowans Carry Guns to Church as Situation Remains Serious in "Enclosure War" Zone.

LE MARS, Iowa, April 30.—(UP)—Citizens of western Iowa corn lands carried pistols to church today while soldiers patrolled the countryside seeking fugitive farmers who fled after almost lynching a judge in their determination to gain governmental relief from the depression.

Khaki-clad national guardsmen who enforced Governor Clyde L. Hershberg's martial law order in Plymouth and Crawford counties concentrated their efforts on capturing some 60 fugitive farmers accused of taking part in an attack last week upon Judge Charles C. Bradley.

Five of the accused were in jail at Sioux City where they were taken secretly when rumors spread that a mob planned an attempt to free them from an improvised guardhouse here.

The fugitives were held tonight in the guardhouse and additional fugitives were being brought in almost hourly.

Colonel Glenn C. Haynes, in command of the 250 national guardsmen here, issued orders tonight for trial of the farmers at courtmartial.

There had been some argument over whether such a course could be followed inasmuch as the offense charged was committed before martial law was declared.

Army officers said Judge Advocate Frank H. Hall, prosecutor here, possibly starting tomorrow. The farmers will be allowed to retain civil counsel but must stand trial before a court of either seven or nine army officers.

Governor Herring, who believes the violence was started by "hoodlums," ordered the search continued. He continued in Page 4, Column 4.

6 PERSONS KILLED BY DIXIE TORNADO AROUND HOARDERS

More Than 50 Hurt and Hundreds Left Homeless in Two States.

YAZOO CITY, Miss., April 30.—(AP)—Tornado winds which lashed southern Arkansas and western Mississippi last night and early today took a toll of six known dead. Fifty or more injured, and estimated half million dollar property damage, and left a trail of destruction.

The heaviest damage was caused at Yazoo City where two negroes, an aged woman and a child, were killed, and seven white persons and 35 negroes injured when the twister demolished almost 200 houses.

Striking the plantation area south of Lake Village, Ark., the storm killed W. D. Boyd, aged father of Dr. H. C. Boyd, and two negroes. The Boyd home was blown almost 200 feet and demolished.

A negro woman was killed near Greenville, and two negroes at Yazoo City.

The twister, dipping down south of Jonesboro, Ark., struck the Yazoo City settlement with its full force, settled across the swollen stream, skidded again at the southwest edge of Yazoo City, then

U. S. DRAWING NET AROUND HOARDERS

WHEELS BEGIN TURNING FOR PUNISHMENT OF THOSE HOLDING GOLD.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(AP)—A determined government tonight was drawing in the ends of the seine that in another 24 hours will ensnare gold hoarders who choose to face prosecution rather than the United States consignment into the banks to serve the entire nation as basis for additional credit.

The period for turning in gold, as ordered by President Roosevelt, ends early Sunday morning. Those who have not complied may be punished by a fine of $10,000 and 10 years in prison, or both.

Secretary Woodin has indicated the government is going to get the metal and punish those who deliberately seek to evade the law.

The treasury has a list of all persons who have withdrawn gold in large amounts during the last two years and who had not returned it to the banks on March 27, directed by the federal reserve board in compliance with the president's national bank holiday proclamation and subsequent executive orders.

Those not checked off by tomorrow night will be subject to prosecution.

Beer Returns Today To Tennessee, N. C.

Legalization of beer in Tennessee, effective today, was halted last night by Finance and Taxation Commissioner Dancy Fort as a boon to elementary schools and their teachers, but B. F. Auld, superintendent of the state Saloon League organization, made it the occasion for urging dries to "be alert to oppose liquor's return."

No Less Conceded.

Most of the revenue from the state tax of $120 a barrel goes to elementary schools, Fort said in a statement that these institutions and their teachers "thousands of whom have not been paid in full in months, will derive the real financial benefit from the legalization of beer."

Dr. Auld declared, however, that "it shall not be a party to saddling the alcoholic habit on our young people even by beer drinking."

Beer also becomes legal today in North Carolina.

Mrs. W. H. Knight Hurt In Cordele Auto Wreck

Mrs. W. H. Knight, wife of the pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle, early Sunday morning was injured in an automobile accident near Cordele while en route to Tampa, Fla., to join Dr. Knight, who has been conducting services in Tampa for ten days. Mrs. Knight received cuts and bruises and her condition was not regarded as serious.

Dr. Knight, of Atlanta, riding with Mr. Knight, was slightly injured. Both women are in Cordele hospital. Reports were that the automobile struck a wagon.

News of Mrs. Knight's injury was received in Atlanta soon after the accident and was announced in local Baptist pulpits. The Y. W. A. of the Tabernacle conducted services at the church Sunday morning and Professor W. H. Wright, of Athens, preached Sunday night in the absence of Dr. Knight.

14,400 Indians To Get Jobs in Forest Camps

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(UP)—Plans for enrollment of 14,400 American Indians in President Roosevelt's dollar-a-day civilian conservation corps were announced today by Forestry Director Robert Fechner.

The president's emergency conservation organization will establish 72 forest work camps on Indian reservations in 15 western and southwestern states. Fechner said the Indian service, instead of the army, would supervise these camps and the work of the men assigned to them.

These camps are designed primarily to alleviate the Indian relief problem," the director said, "other men will be given an opportunity to take part in the Indian relief work as a surplus of jobs develops."

Camps will be established in Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Minnesota, Montana, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Mahatma Gandhi Bares Plans For Self-Purification Fast

POONA, India, April 30.—(AP)—The aged and frail Mahatma Gandhi announced from Yeroda jail today that on May 8 he will begin a "three-week unconditional, irrevocable fast" in connection with his campaign against untouchability and the caste system.

The political and religious leader of thousands summoned his son Devdas to the jail this morning and broke the news to him. For two days the son tried to dissuade his father, but unsuccessfully.

In an interview the Mahatma denied that the fast was a part of a political move. "It is a process of self-purification," he said simply.

Mr. Gandhi, who has been serving an indefinite term since his arrest on January 4, 1932, under a regulation permitting arrest merely for "good and sufficient reasons" in connection with his passive resistance campaign, refused to give any tangible reason for the decision today.

Many Reasons.

"As I look back on the immediate past, I see many reasons too sacred to mention that must have precipitated a fast," the leader declared.

"They are all connected with the great Indian (untouchable) cause. I have no desire to die. I want to live for the cause, although I hope I am equally prepared to die for it."

NEW FILTON JURY TO RECEIVE DATA ON COUNTY PROBE

Organization of Group Expected To Be Featured By Charge for Further County Inquiry.

Organization of the May-June Filton grand jury this morning by Judge Virgil B. Moore, of the Atlanta circuit, is expected to be featured by a charge conveying to the incoming grand jurors the recommendations of the March-April jury for further investigation of county affairs.

Edgar Dunlap, secretary of the last grand jury, has been ordered by the court to turn over to the new jury data gathered by the March-April jury in its county investigation.

The newly created citizens' committee, appointed by the retiring grand jury to probe county government matters and report to a subsequent grand jury, probably will submit together early this week on preliminaries to its investigation, it was said. The committee held several conferences following appointment.

The retiring grand jury urged an investigation of alleged political activities of the municipal court of Atlanta, as well as the reduction of county salaries. It was over the salary reduction recommendations that the jury and the county administration came to grips, although before the end of the term, the commissioners sent to the jury a letter pleading further cuts in salaries.

The March-April jury sought reduction in salaries and personnel to save $500,000 a year. After the controversy between the jury and the commissioners developed, the jury sought to replace the Atlanta circuit judges and Solicitor-General John A. Boykin with men from another circuit to conduct an investigation of county matters.

The local bench, however, refused to disqualify itself or the solicitor. This was followed by the filing of an affidavit by William G. McInnis, attorney, accusing Boykin of an indictable crime. Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy appointed Robert B. Trotter to succeed the retiring jury, to investigate the charge, and Troutman is now studying the case prior to taking it before the grand jury.

The prevailing feeling among his followers is one of bewilderment as the Mahatma makes no demand the fulfillment of which would enable him to abandon his fast.

News Spreads.

The news of Mr. Gandhi's decision spread like wildfire.

"The prevailing feeling among his followers is one of bewilderment as the Mahatma makes no demand the fulfillment of which would enable him to abandon his fast."

For a long time he has sought the revocation of the ban forbidding "untouchables" from entering the famous Ganges river temple. In December he conducted a brief fast in protest against the treatment of his fellow prisoners in Yeroda jail here.

His wife was arrested early in February for illegal political activities and was sentenced to six months imprisonment.

The name of Miss Dooly, which will be placed on the tablet through Mrs. Evans' generosity, was for many years well known in social circles throughout the whole south. Miss Dooly was one of the pioneer south-

Tax Trap Is Laid For N. Y. Hoodlums

NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP)—The trap that snared Chicago's elusive crime dictators, Al Capone, was disclosed tonight as about to be sprung on a selected list of New York hoodlums.

Working in conjunction with city detectives, a squad of agents from the department of justice has been quietly laying the trap by checking up on the incomes and tax-paying habits or evasions, of metropolitan racketeers.

The American says orders for the federal campaign in this area were reported to have come from sources close to President Roosevelt, following disclosures of racketeering activities in legitimate business as well as in liquor and narcotics.

Four of the deaths occurred in Louisiana and two in Florida.

Marion Dacan, 21, fell down the steps of his home in New Orleans and was injured fatally.

A mule kicked Roy Holland, 18, in the stomach at Rayville, La., and the youth died of internal injuries.

Edward H. Martin, a leading Ocala (Fla.) attorney, accidentally shot himself to death while cleaning a shotgun.

Thomas Chancy, 14, was drowned in the ocean near Jacksonville, Fla.

Mary Parker, negro woman, was thrown from a moving automobile and killed at New Orleans.

GOSSETT'S SOUND ADVICE.

In discussing unbusinesslike phases of the cotton manufacturing industry, President B. B. Gossett, of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, in his annual address pertinently remarks that "no governmental agency forces us to overproduce."

He warns that—

It is obvious, in shaping our policy for the future, we must give greater attention to the matter of merchandising and distribution, make allowances for seasonal swings and adjust our operations accordingly. We must aim at profitable selling and place much less emphasis on the selling of volume, bearing in mind that a stabilized market offers the best incentive to volume demand. The violence of seasonal changes must be kept constantly in mind and production should proceed rather than follow the customary slump in demand.

Expressing his belief that the country is now on the certain road to recovery, President Gossett warns the members of the cotton association that they must not be motivated by selfishness but must "dedicate themselves to the task of launching a vigorous offensive with the determination of leading the country out of this slump." He stresses that—

Our desire must be to serve our state and nation faithfully and well. In so doing, we shall be serving our industry best. We must put aside individualism; we must put aside unenlightened selfishness and stand together as one in a great irrepressible push with stability and prosperity for all as our goal. Our task calls for all—everything—each of us may have of fortitude, efficiency and friendliness.

On the plane of efficiency and national-mindedness, outlined by President Gossett, the cotton industry, and every other industry in the country, can find sure and sustained prosperity.

It is because business in the United States and throughout the whole world lost sight of these fundamental principles during the boom years that the economic blood-letting of the past four years became inevitable.

Cotton manufacturing must of necessity always remain one of the world's greatest industries. In view of the universal demand for its products, it can blame only itself if it is not prosperous. It is but natural that its rapid development has witnessed the development of unhealthy conditions, the handicapping effects of which are now clearly revealed.

It is to the elimination of these conditions and the necessity for constructive campaigns for the increased use of cotton fabrics that President Gossett addresses himself in his able and far-sighted message. It is a message which the members of the cotton association should closely study in order that, through the application of the reforms he advocates, the industry may be put on a sounder and more permanently prosperous basis.

SUPERSTITIOUS AMERICA.

Nine out of ten Americans are possessed by black cats, broken mirrors, lucky charms and evil omens, according to a survey conducted by Professors Otis W. Caldwell and Gerhard E. Lundeen, of Columbia University, the results of which lead these university instructors to believe that 98 per cent of all Americans are "influenced by superstitions."

Discussing their findings in an article in the American Magazine, Professors Caldwell and Lundeen relate that their survey proves country people more superstitious than city folks; that educated people are the least superstitious; that women are more so than men; and that stage people, sailors, prize fighters and politicians lead the list of those who fear to walk under ladders and perform other acts which we are told are certain to result in ill fortune.

The professors ease the shock to the pride of the average American who likes to think that he belongs to a level-headed race, too wise to be the prey to the influences of evil omens, by writing that they have "exploded," at least to their own satisfaction, a lot of present-day superstitions.

Schools, we are informed, are in line with the studies of the two Columbia pedagogues, "adopting courses in which common superstitions and unfounded beliefs are discussed and exploded."

It is difficult to believe that the authorities of any school, even in this day of educational frills and furbelows, would authorize such idiotic waste of public money. What a long—and, in many respects, ludicrous—way we have come from the days when the three R's formed a sound basis for the mental training given to the boys and girls who are the men and women of today.

INFLATION APPROVED.

Unusual unanimity of approval of controlled currency inflation as a major move to bring about the restoration of more normal conditions of buying and commodity prices is exhibited by the press of the country.

Regardless of political affiliation, newspapers in every section of the country, in port cities, industrial centers and agricultural sections, admit the necessity for steps to stabilize the purchasing power of the dollar and, without exception, put full faith in the competence of President Roosevelt to authorize only such inflationary steps as are found necessary to reach the desired objectives and are free from dangerous possibilities.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, democratic, feels that "there is nothing to fear from a managed inflation upon which the president and the secretary of the treasury have a firm control. . . . We must deal with the condition that confronts us and inflation is far from being either untold or unsafe."

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, republican, emphasizes that the currency inflation measure as drawn will "put an end to various and numerous inflationary schemes originating in congress, most believed to be highly dangerous."

President Roosevelt has again dramatically demonstrated his leadership, the Minneapolis Tribune, republican, feels, in commenting that "the experiment is bold, the responsibility the president is willing to assume is great, but most important of all is the goal which we are all seeking—the restoration of a balanced prosperity."

The Birmingham Age-Herald, democratic, summarizes the objective of the inflationary measure as being "in short, rising prices are to be given a creative shove by the administration whenever the opportunity presents itself. If that involves danger, we should be happy that we are being led by so sane and open-minded an executive."

The Chicago Tribune, republican, cites that "the drive for inflation finds its strength in the cities as well as in the country; its justification lies in the universal recognition of the disastrous results of a price decline which has not been preceded by a decline in costs."

Undoubtedly the position assumed so generally by the press of the nation reflects the belief of the people that, while inflation per se is loaded with dynamite, a modified, strictly controlled policy of currency expansion, under the direction of a chief executive in whose soundness of judgment full confidence is placed, is necessary, and not dangerous, under present conditions.

This attitude on the part of the public will prove one of the strongest factors contributing to the success of the currency inflation move, undertaken, as it is, mainly for the purpose of reviving trade and raising the price of agricultural and manufactured commodities.

It is a comforting assurance that the improvement in conditions recorded during this month are destined to continue under a control that will prevent either a drift backward towards stagnation or a progress too rapid to be healthy.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Insomnia.

For years we have strained all our efforts to sleep at night. For a whole year we drank no coffee at all. On the advice of friends we took a stroll around the city after retiring. On the advice of other friends we took a cold douche—not often—we will admit—but we tried it. A hot water bottle was pressed into service. We tried deep breathing. We essayed eating an orange at bedtime. We even went so far as to follow the advice for a whole week of singing a little song of silence before the hour of withdrawal. It brought no relief. Complaint from our neighbors to the committee of the house-owners—the concierge.

Nothing helped. Insomnia runs in the family. We have a very carefully kept family chronicle. In that book we discovered unmistakable evidence that some of our forebears suffered from the same complaint. That rubric, "chateau," for instance, who went on the first crusade almost 1,000 years ago, was in the habit of drinking himself goggle-eyed before retiring. What was that but an effort to escape from the nocturnal tortures? And so, conscious of our defeat, aware of this inherited weakness, we have lately tried to make it a virtue from necessity. We lie awake. We think. No earthly noises penetrate to our austere couch—no unearthly noises either, except when the neighbor's cat comes in to her head to serenade the moon.

When we lie there in comparative silence, we think. We review the world scene. We ransack our brains for schemes to end the crisis in a way that it will hurt nobody. Truth to tell, we strike at least a dozen most ingenious methods every night. Our schemes are the most positively brilliant sure-cures. We have the one glorious notion after the other. We have the most exalted thoughts. There is only one trouble about all these soul-lifting half-dreams and visions: we never remember them in the morning.

The Dog As Motorist.

The Countryman, an English periodical, devotes its latest number to a discussion of the question why dogs like to motor. There can be no question about it that they do. Big and little, they all like it, and they are hard to get out even after the ride is over. One observer of dogs thinks that dogs like motor because it gives them a superiority sense over their fellows who must stick to the roadway. This is a bad view, for it would suggest snobbery, which is not a dog's quality. The real reason, probably, is that the dog likes motor because it brings him new smells and new experiences.

The life of the modern dog must be extremely boring. His forefathers had the freedom of the road and of the countryside, a liberty which modern traffic has inhibited the present-day dog. He is not allowed to change. And yet, were he left free to choose, I doubt not that he would promptly quit the finest and fleetest limousine if he saw a flea-covered mongrel on the sidewalk.

Unlawful Possession.

The father was showing his little family a human spine which he had been sent to him for anatomical purposes. But the youngest child was shocked. "Oh, daddy," she said, "that's not to be in heaven!" (Copyright, 1933, for The Constitution.)

Health Talks BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

THE HABIT OF GETTING OUT OF JOINT.

Nine years ago both arms of a girl thirteen years old were dislocated at the shoulder in an accident in which when X-ray pictures were made some time afterward both shoulder joints were in place.

Several times after that, while doing ordinary things, the arms would come out of the sockets, she says, particularly the left arm. As a rule, before the doctor arrived they snapped back into place, and the doctor concluded that they had not been really dislocated after the first time.

This has happened hundreds of times, the lady avers, and as there is no reason to believe the case complicated by love we may concede that it has happened a score of times, in nine years, for I am sure a lady never lies more than that except for love.

At any rate, every time it happens it causes much pain and embarrassment and once or twice the lady has narrowly escaped serious accidents because of the arm and shoulder going out of joint.

She has learned how to snap it back herself, but at 30—no hum, no notion of Utopia is a world where everybody, having once attained 30, stays 30 forever after—at 30, as the present world is arranged, a girl hates to think of spending the rest of her life snapping her shoulders back into joint. The doctors told her that her shoulders would be all right in time. Yet somehow the young lady yearns to consult somebody or do something about it.

When the shoulder joint is dislocated the capsule or ligament which completely encircles the joint is necessarily torn or stretched, and sometimes this capsule remains loose, probably in the case described, so that slight movements of the kind which caused the original dislocation will throw the arm out of joint again. After several repetitions of this the joint is very readily dislocated. It becomes a bad habit.

Formerly various shoulder cap harnesses were used to restrain the joint,

Few Would Learn To Dress Themselves If They Had Servants To Do It

By Robert Quillen

In almost every family there is a martyr—usually the wife and mother, who finds her chief pleasure in service and self-denial; but in many instances the father or oldest son, driven by a sense of duty, or by the last son or daughter, victimized by selfish and heartless superiors. As a rule the martyrdom is self-made.

The husband and father, whose love is unwise, denies himself necessities in order to give his loved ones more than they need. He becomes a plow-horse.

His reward, of course, is ingratitude and a kind of affectionate contempt. Other members of the family accept everything he gives as their natural right. They take as a matter of course and give nothing in return. They develop the habit of ignoring him. They would do anything for him, but they are too busy to interfere with their plans or begin to spend money for his own pleasure.

The son or daughter actuated by a sense of duty becomes a similar drudge, serving without reward of gratitude—imposed upon, taken for granted—perhaps pitied a little as an old stick who seems to care for nothing but work.

If the "baby" of the family is the victim, he begins his service in adoration, continues joyously if given a word of praise, and ends as a martyr. He develops the habit of ignoring him. They would do anything for him, but they are too busy to interfere with their plans or begin to spend money for his own pleasure.

Whoever the martyr may be, he has himself to blame. And the blame is heavy, for he does more harm than good.

It is human nature to impose on those who invite imposition. It is human nature to accept favors as a natural right when custom has dulled the edge of gratitude. It is human nature to regard as inferiors those who permit us to impose on them.

Thus the martyr injures those he would benefit. He spoils them. He teaches them selfishness, ingratitude, discourtesy, the habit of tyranny and a false conception of their own importance.

If he would save himself and those he serves, he must at any cost change his ways. He need not make a scene. Let him calmly and politely do himself justice and leave the others to pick their own cherries or do without. They will feel abused for a time, but they will learn to walk when the free horse is gone.

TROOPS ROUND UP MEMBERS OF MOB THAT BEAT JUDGE

tended that outsiders led the movement which resulted in Judge Bradley being dragged from his bench, smeared with grease and dirt, and being allowed to escape when he refused to ignore his oath of office and promise to stop mortgage foreclosures.

Two of the fugitives, O. M. Kelly, of Remsen, and S. T. Moser, of Jefferson, S. D., surrendered late today to the soldiers.

As newspaper correspondents swarmed into the "war zone" resulting from the mob action, the situation had long been critical. Many admitted they had been carrying guns for months. Some disclosed that they had guns in their pockets when they attended church this morning. Horner Schultz, appraiser for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, said he had not left his home for months without an automatic pistol in each hip pocket.

Merchants and landowners expressed regret at the recent outbreaks. Le Mars is in the western border of the "Cotton" state. Crawford is south and slightly "inland" from the border. Both counties are heavily inhabited by tenant farmers. Both have suffered severely from drought and grasshoppers. It was here that farmers endured the most, and it was here that they revolted.

A "Cotton" state last year resulted in the death of one man and wounding of several. Early this year, new revolts flared, then were called off from the sidewalk by the new federal administration.

Last Thursday farmers at Pringleville battled sheriff with rocks and bones and forced the officers to flee. A few hours later other farmers attacked Judge Bradley.

Soldiers began streaming into the territory the next day. Authorities expressed a belief that the leaders had fled to counties not under martial law and possibly were organizing a new rising.

The arrival of the soldiers brought comparative peace here.

TWO HURT WHEN WIND HITS AURORA RACE TRACK

but with indifferent effect, and for a live shot in 1933 such treatment would be as appropriate as a nain-sook petticoat with lace ruffles.

The sensible course for the young woman is repair of the torn capsule or tightening of the relaxed or stretched capsule. This is an orthopedic operation, but any physician who is qualified to do surgery can treat the case successfully. As the girl's condition is her own fault, she should limit her price to orthopedic surgery. The arm must be kept in a sling for three weeks after the operation. Passive movements—manipulation of the arm—should be begun in the third week, and active movements or exercise in the fourth week. In five weeks the patient is able to return to work.

Where it is impossible to undergo such treatment, a light appliance which reminds the patient to hold the shoulders back, and discourages slumping, is of great value. It is made of the shoulders, tends to prevent recurrence. Or without an appliance, constant endeavor to maintain tall, erect posture—shoulder back, chin in, head trying to touch ceiling, hands clasped behind, toeing in, belly proud as H-line says. Bracing yourself in this way is a good habit to form. Every day, say just a moment or two at every hour struck by the clock.

NATIONAL SURETY CORPORATION'S REORGANIZED

'Corporation' Replaces 'Company' in Title and Service Will Continue.

NEW YORK, April 30.—(UP)—A reorganized National Surety Corporation, now called the National Surety Corporation, will begin operations here tomorrow under plans announced by George S. Van Schaick, state superintendent of insurance.

The reorganization was perfected yesterday and the new company, organized under the New York state laws, is in possession of the assets and business organization of the old company.

The successor company, said the insurance department's statement, starts business with a paid-in capital of $1,000,000, a surplus of $3,000,000 over and above all liabilities assumed and no indebtedness for borrowed money.

The department reported that provision has been made in the rehabilitation plan for immediate steps for the handling through a separate organization of the guarantee mortgage business of the old company.

Additional remaining assets will be administered by the superintendent of insurance or by a corporation to be formed for that purpose for the benefit of other creditors and policyholders of the old company.

The plan was declared operative after approval by the board of the old company.

The new corporation, it was stated, is not taking over the unearned premium reserve of the old company and therefore is not assuming liability for payment of return premiums on cancelled bonds and policies. Mr. Van Schaick cautioned policyholders that cancellation would give them only a cash refund against the assets of the old company remaining in the hands of the rehabilitator.

The old National Surety Corporation has been one of the leading companies in the surety field with a history dating back about 35 years.

The company specialized in writing fidelity, surety, burglary, and fire insurance. It was licensed to operate in all states in the Union. It had a capital of 300,000 shares of $10 par.

Farmer Buying Power Reported on Upgrade

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(UP)—The purchasing power of the world's biggest buyers—the American farmer—is on the upgrade.

From February 15, when it was at its lowest, the purchasing power of agricultural economies has been keeping records, until March 15, farm purchasing power advanced an aggregate of five points in the bureau's index. It has been further advanced since that date.

On February 15 the average price of materials purchased by farmers was 3 per cent over the 1914 average and was listed in the index at 103.

On the same date, the price paid farmers for the things he sells averaged 51 per cent below the pre-war figure, and was indexed at 49.

On the basis of these two figures the farmer's purchasing power was listed at 48, or 52 per cent below pre-war days.

MANCHUKUOAN BUSINESS SHOWS MARKED GAINS

NEW YORK, April 30.—(UP)—Improvement of commerce and industry in the new state of Manchukuo, formerly Manchuria, is indicated in foreign trade figures made public today by the Japanese government.

He attributed the increases, most notable during the last three months of the period, to establishment of peaceful conditions and growing confidence among foreign businessmen in the stability of the new government.

Imports of American commodities—chiefly grain, steel, petroleum, machinery and automobiles—gained 58 per cent, according to the report.

MANCHUKUO TO BLOCKADE CHINESE EASTERN STATIONS

HARBIN, Manchuria (Monday), May 1.—(UP)—Forceful blockade of international railroad stations at Poonchanyuan and Manchukuo will shortly be enforced by Manchukuo, it was announced today after a stormy meeting of Chinese Eastern railway directors.

The drastic order was made more ominous by reported concentrations of Manchukuo and Japanese troops on one side of Manchuria-Siberia border, and similar soviet concentrations on the other side.

PERU'S PRESIDENT VICTIM OF ASSASSIN

1931, after elections the previous October.

He was shot and slightly wounded March 6, 1932, at a church in the summer resort of Miraflores by a member of the opposition party.

The assassin, identified as Jose Melgar Marquez, a member of the Aprista political party, also wounded nine other persons, including five women.

Luis M. Sanchez Cerro rose to power in Peru by staging a military coup against President Leguia in 1930. A counter-revolt forced out Sanchez Cerro's provisional government shortly afterward and he left the country. He obtained permission to return, however, and was elected president in October, 1931.

He became a virtual dictator and subdued opponents with an iron hand. At the time of his death Peru was engaged in hostilities with its neighbor, Colombia, over the Amazon river port of Leticia.

Sanchez Cerro was essentially a military man, and at the time he became president, held the rank of lieutenant colonel.

SPAULDING ADDRESSES
STUDENTS AT BERRY

Regents Chairman Says Too
Many Schools Fail To Teach Necessities.

MOUNT BERRY, Ga., April 30.—The need of patriotism in service of one's country, in seeing the way of duty and then doing it, was emphasized Saturday before the thousand students of Berry schools by Hughes Spaulding, of Atlanta, chairman of the board of regents of the university system of Georgia.

Speaking in Mount Berry chapel in the afternoon and informally later to a group of faculty members, Mr. Spaulding told of the great outcry in the state for economy in education and the outburst of protest from every community which felt the economic pinch. Hundreds of letters of protest have come in from the communities in which schools were consolidated or abolished by the regents, Mr. Spaulding revealed.

"Everyone who has anything seems to want to cling tightly to his possessions and ask economy to begin with the other fellow," Mr. Spaulding said. "Today everyone in the world realizes that there is something sadly wrong with it, but few want to get down to facts to find out what is wrong. I think we must get back to religion, to Christianity, to find a solution of our problems."

"We must become unselfish in service and in giving. We must make sacrifices for our nation, for our state and for the world's good." Passing rapidly over a number of topics, Mr. Spaulding told of the weakness in the public education system of the state, of ignorance among teachers, saying: "It isn't the schoolhouse, no matter how fine, that makes the school. It is what is taught there."

Discussing national politics, Mr. Spaulding said: "President Roosevelt has realized there was something wrong in a nation where all the farmers were impoverished. He has taken steps to remedy this. No nation can be rich unless the farmers make more than they spend. I hope you students are learning how to really farm, to rotate crops, to enrich the soil, to become leaders through intelligent action."

"There are too many schools teaching people how to become farm agents, and teachers of others, but not enough teaching men and women to live in their own community and to better that place."

Mr. and Mrs. Spaulding, with their children, were guests of Martha Berry, founder and director of the schools, at noon luncheon.

BICENTENNIAL EDITION
BY GAINESVILLE EAGLE

GAINESVILLE, Ga., April 30.—In issuing last week a Georgia bicentennial edition, the Gainesville Eagle, edited by Austin F. Dean, set a record in weekly journalism in Georgia by including with this edition a special 12-page rotogravure section, approximating the rotogravure used by large dailies.

Telling of Gainesville and Hall county's part in Georgia history, more than 100 photographs of local interest and descriptions of local business and manufacturing concerns make this the most comprehensive special edition yet issued by a weekly newspaper.

Commenting on this edition, Editor Dean said: "The Eagle bicentennial edition is sent out with justifiable pride, for we feel that it is one that is fitting and illustrative of the integral part Gainesville and Hall county have played in the history of the state."

This edition marks the seventy-fifth anniversary of the publication of the Eagle. The Eagle has rendered Gainesville and north Georgia. Last year they won the Suttle trophy for having the best typographical makeup. Stokely Parks is foreman of this section. Charles Sanders, advertising manager of the Eagle, stated today: "Sixty-five local firms co-operated in making this edition possible, and from an industrial, commercial and reader interest it is a tremendous success. Thousands of these have been distributed throughout a score of states, telling prospective tourists and factory heads that Georgia is the ideal state and Gainesville the 'logical' place for their southern plants. Mr. Dean announced in this special edition also the absolute certainty of the Owen Osborne Hosiery Manufacturing Company locating in this city. He stated that through the efforts of local committees buildings and site have been supplied and all requirements met, with construction expected to begin immediately."

PAPER MANUFACTURERS
VISIT SAVANNAH TODAY

Possibilities of Slash Pine as Newsprint Source To Be Shown.

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 30.—(AP)—Industrial leaders and forest owners of this section today mustered arguments and facts designed to convince eastern capital that the future of the paper making industry lies in Georgia and the south.

Elaborate plans for receiving some 100 prominent manufacturers and scientists from New England and Canada, due by boat early tomorrow, were announced, along with details of an intensive two-day program of inspection during which progress made in the use of pine for paper making will be shown.

Following a civic breakfast served aboard ship, visitors will be taken to a local hotel where they will participate in a meeting of the Georgia Forestry Association. Tuesday a tour of nearby forest areas will be made. Definite outcome of the visit cannot be foreseen, Dr. Charles H. Herty, internationally known chemist and inventor, and Colonel E. George Butler, vice chairman of the Savannah Industrial Committee said, but developments of outstanding importance to the economic life of Georgia are anticipated.

Dr. Herty said he would explain in detail findings of his experiments with the use of pine in the sap wood state for making of newsprint, and will discuss possibilities of making other types of paper from pine. He is the first one to say that the experiments have not been carried far enough to determine the exact future of paper making in the south.

"We have only made a beginning—have only scratched the surface," Dr. Herty said. "We have proven conclusively that pine in the sap wood stage can be turned into woodpulp of sufficient strength and texture to make good newsprint, but the newsprint part of paper making is only one phase."

"We must now in some manner obtain funds to continue our experiments along other lines."

SPECIAL ADDED PRIZES

TWO FREE TRIPS TO WORLD'S FAIR TO THE PERSON ENTERING THE MOST JINKYS DURING THE CONTEST.

WHAT IS A JINKY?

A Jinky is a piece of paper—a piece of paper which you can secure at any of the stores displaying the official Jinky sign—all that you have to do, is fold this piece of paper and either with a scissors, razor blade, punch, or just your hands, tear, cut or clip holes in it. When you have finished, unfold it, and THEN you have a JINKY . . .

The Constitution is offering hundreds of dollars in cash prizes, diamond rings, watches, merchandise and theater tickets, to the best Jinky makers in Atlanta, in accordance with the rules below.

RULES OF CONTEST

1. The Jinky contest will start Wednesday, May 3, and end Wednesday, August 1.
2. Any person (except employees of The Constitution and their families) regardless of age, is eligible to enter the Jinky contest.
3. Any contestant may cut or make as many Jinkys as they wish, but Jinkys may be entered in the contest only with 10 Jinky receipts. (Example): If a person has 70 Jinky receipts, he or she may enter 7 Jinkys in the contest.
4. Contestants will be given 1 Jinky receipt by co-operating firms with each 25c purchase or payment on account. (Example): If a contestant buys $1 worth of merchandise at any of the co-operating stores he or she will receive 4 Jinky receipts. If a contestant pays $2 on account, he or she will receive 8 Jinky receipts.
5. Each Wednesday there will appear a free Jinky receipt in The Constitution. Contestants may use this free Jinky receipt along with 9 paid receipts to enter a Jinky in the contest.
6. A list of the official stores giving Jinkys and Jinky receipts will be published in The Constitution each Monday, Wednesday and Saturday. You may ask for and get Jinkys and Jinky receipts any day in the week, but JINKYS MAY BE ENTERED IN THE CONTEST ONLY ON WEDNESDAYS, AT 137 PEACHTREE ARCADE.
7. Prizes will be awarded according to rules announced each Wednesday. Be sure and see rules for first week's contest in Wednesday's Constitution.
8. Each week's contest will close promptly at 6 p. m. on Wednesday, and winners' names for the week will be published in the following Sunday's Constitution.
9. All Jinkys will be judged according to:
 - a. Oddity. b. Originality. c. Artistic Merit.

SUGGESTIONS: For the first week's contest, small lacy figures are not as desirable as bold, easily recognized designs. Make your Jinkys so the Judges will be attracted at once. Don't compel them to study out the design—in other words, make it odd, make it original, and make it as artistic as you can—BUT ABOVE ALL, MAKE IT. You have just as good a chance as anyone.

Additional Rules for first week's contest will be given in Wednesday's Constitution.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

DO NOT DECORATE JINKYS.
 DO NOT COLOR OR PAINT THEM.
 SIMPLY FOLD THE JINKY AND CUT IT.

PARIS IS WIDENING SHOULDERS IN SUITS

The suit costume is of chief interest for daytime wear.

And isn't this model tremendously good looking?

It is a conservative novelty checked pattern in light navy blue woolen. The coral red crepe bodice of the dress, lends an extremely light touch. Note the sporty scarf neckline. The skirt attached to the bodice in a slimming fashion, is gently shaped.

Besides woolen, this style is suitable for crepe silk. It is stunning in a small patterned silk crepe or 3 1/4 yard 64-inch with 1 1/2 yards 30-inch contrasting.

Our large fashion magazine is 48 pages. In addition to new pattern pages for women and children, it contains valuable beauty articles, some of which are illustrated by Norma Shearer and other Hollywood stars. It is a book every reader should have and its price will be saved many times for the patterns are nominally priced.

New York Musical Director To Give Concert at Berry School

ROME, Ga., April 30.—In a piano program entitled "Dance and Song From Scarlatti to Stravinsky," Miss Marion Rous, director of the Greenwich House Music school in New York, will be heard here Wednesday, May 3, at the Berry schools. On April 24, Miss Rous spoke at the Duncanson Phillips Art Galleries in Washington, D. C., for the Musical Club, participating in the Congressional Library Music Festival. On May 1, this pianist gave a similar musical program which she will give at Berry school at the University of the South in Sewanee, Tennessee.

Miss Rous' present engagement at Berry school will bring forth the kinship of old to new and of folk music to art music, exemplified in titled program. The "program-plots" relates the Neapolitan bright tunes of the 18th century Italian composer, Scarlatti, with his brilliant operas and sonatas to the rag-time of the 20th century modern Russian composer, Stravinsky, and his fellow experimenters in the syncretisms of today. In between these extremes, the sarabandes, jigs and waltzes of Bach, Brahms and Beethoven will lead the way to the classic masterpieces of this widely diversified program.

MISS MARION ROUS.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: A year ago I married a girl that I had known only a few months. I haven't been together much since the reason that I was in the army and confined to the time. I can't say that I loved her when I married her but I have grown to love her more since. When I came out of the army I was unable to get work so I went to my people and she to hers. I am now sentenced to the penitentiary for four years and feel that we should have a divorce. I can't begin all over again and she doesn't want to divorce me. It seems to me that each of us would be better off free. Then after my time in the penitentiary I could begin all over again and she can begin all over again right now. Isn't this common sense reasoning?

Answer: This may be common sense reasoning for people with no moral sense, but it is certainly not common sense reasoning for those who have a regard for the moral law, on which the laws of church and state are built. Marriage is something more than a loose agreement between two people to live together so long as they find it pleasant and agreeable. Yet in a case like this one, when everything is in connection with the marriage, it is wrong, how can one devise a plan to right it all? Two irreparable young people getting married before they know their own minds and before they could establish any sort of normal relationship, their boat caught rudderless in the storm of an economic disaster that has taxed the best mariners, sailing the best vessels, is it any wonder that they are at sea as to what course they should take?

Some of the prettiest stories of history and fiction of wives and sweethearts waiting at prison doors to receive into their arms husbands and lovers who have paid the bitter debt to society. These stories are instinct with love and loyalty. They picture self-control and power of the human soul to triumph over insuperable difficulty and disaster. These are all divine virtues that we admire and that separate human beings from animals.

Then why, if a woman is willing and eager to remain the wife of a man who has run afoul of the law and been sentenced to the penitentiary, why, if she is willing to wait for him until he has served his time, should she insist on a divorce that will cut him loose from the one thing above all others that may help him to go straight? To know that a woman loved him enough to stick to him through a humiliation such as a penal sentence and being in prison, why should she not wait for him until that sentence was served should make the serious man resolve to prove himself worthy of her love and faith.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

BY ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Masters of Bridge

Harold C. Richard, in his hours of business, is engaged as one of the financial leaders of New York City. He does, however, find time, after banking hours are over, to visit one of his favorite Bridge clubs, either Crockett's or The Whist Club, for a few rubbers of Contract. Recently at Crockett's he met as a partner with Walter Beinecke, with whom he has a very splendid partnership. The hand below was the first of the rubber.

South Dealer. Neither side vulnerable.

Mr. Beinecke ♠ 6 2
♦ A 8
♣ A Q 10 6 4 2

Mr. Richard ♠ 9 7 3
♥ 10 6
♦ 9 4 3
♣ 9 5 3

The bidding:

South West North East
1♥ Pass 2♠ Pass
2NT Pass 3NT Pass
Pass Pass

The bidding of North and South follows quite closely the accepted line. North's hand is not strong enough for a Forcing Takeout, but it certainly is strong enough to raise partner's rebid. South would have three. West's Opening lead was the spade Queen, which was won by South with the King. The success of the hand appeared a simple holding of the trick to three hearts, as 9 tricks were assured, even losing three hearts and the club finesse. South, therefore, correctly developed the hand by leading the Knave of clubs. This trick was won by Mr. Richard with the King.

NANCY PAGE

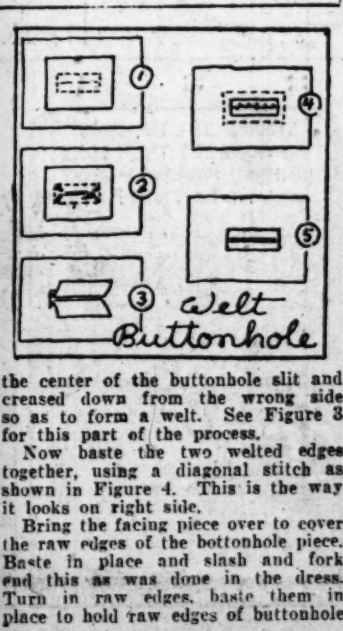

Welt Buttonholes Are Easy To Work.

BY FLORENCE LA GANKE.

Nancy was just finishing a new dress for Joan. It was made of green round cloth dress linen. With it there was a tiny guimpe with puffed sleeves and gathered neck. The linen dress buttoned with two round green welt buttonholes. The binding on the guimpe was the same linen as that used in the dress. And the guimpe was made of sprigged denim in white, green and yellow. The welt buttonholes were not hard to make. Nancy followed the directions. During the various stages the buttonhole looked like the drawings below. First, she marked the place where the buttonhole was to be, and stitched in place as shown in figure. The stitching makes an oblong box as long as the buttonhole and as wide as two seams.

Now with a sharp pointed scissors she slashed through the center, cutting the ends into forked points or wings. She found this had to be done with care and precision. This operation is shown in Figure 2.

Now the material which has been applied is turned to the wrong side of the dress.

Child Health Week Calls For

Proper of Child Health Week has been observed throughout the nation this week. Mrs. Wiley Ballard, chairman of health department for Child Welfare Association of Atlanta, issues the following announcement:

In May, 1928, congress passed a bill asking the president to issue a yearly proclamation on May 1 to have the day and ensuing week set aside in behalf of child health, inviting all agencies and organizations to stress the physical care of the child and unite in the observance of such exercises as will awaken the people of the nation to the fundamental necessity of a year-round program for the protection and development of the health of the nation's children.

Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of the schools of Atlanta, says in regard to the importance of child health:

"No more important work in the entire United States can be undertaken than the maintenance of a week known as Child Health Week, beginning with the first day of May. The object of this week is to begin the summer with a healthy child."

"Every child should have a physical examination by a competent physician and a competent dentist, and there should be a follow-up of this examination by the correction of all defects and above all, every child should have the opportunity to be well nurtured, to be provided with proper exercise and educated in the right health habits that he may continue to develop as a healthy, normal child. The great majority of the children born into the world have a fair chance to become physically fit. It is because we allow defects to accumulate and to destroy their physical efficiency that so many of us fail to arrive at proper standards of health. The emphasis of Child Health Week is to see that every child at the very beginning of life shall have a fair start for efficient living. Every parent and every teacher who has the entire responsibility of child health should consider it a privilege to take part in this work."

PARIS IS WIDENING SHOULDERS IN SUITS

The suit costume is of chief interest for daytime. And isn't this model tremendously good looking?

It is a conservative novelty checked pattern in light navy blue woolen. The corset crepe silk bodice of the dress, lends an extremely light touch. Note the sporty scarf neckline. The skirt attached to the bodice in a slimming fashion, is gently shaped. Besides woolen, this style is suitable for crepe silk. And it is creeping in a small patterned silk, which is book every reader should have and its price will be saved many times for the patterns are nominally priced

New York Musical Director To Give Concert at Berry School

ROME, Ga., April 30.—In a piano program entitled "Dance and Song From Sciaratti to Stavinsky," Miss Marion Rous, director of the Greenwich House Music school in New York, will be heard here Wednesday, May 3, at the Berry schools. On April 24, Miss Rous spoke at the Dunbar Phillips Art Galleries in Washington, D. C., for the Musical Club, participating in the Congressional Library Music Festival. On May 1, this pianist gave a similar musical program which she will give at Berry school at the University of the South in Sewanee, Tennessee.

Miss Rous' present engagement at Berry school will bring forth the kinship of old to new and of folk music to art music, exemplified in titled program. The "program-plots" relates the Neapolitan dance tunes of the 18th century Italian composer, Scarlatti, with his brilliant operas and sonatas to the rag-time of the 20th century, modern Russian composers, Stravinsky, and his fellow experimenters in the syncretisms of today. In between the extremes, the sarabandes, jigs and waltzes of Bach, Beethoven and Brahms, and the dignity to the classic masterpieces of this widely diversified program.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: A year ago I married a girl that I had known only a few months. I haven't been together much for the reason that I was in the army and confined most of the time. I can't say that I loved her when I married her but I have grown to love her more since. When I came out of the army I was unable to get work so I went to my people and she to hers. I am now sentenced to the penitentiary for four years and feel that we should have a divorce. She is opposed to it and says she doesn't want to divorce me. It seems to me that each of us would be better off free. Then after my time in the penitentiary I can get a job and she can begin all over again right now. Isn't this common sense reasoning?

BUCK.

Answer: This may be common sense reasoning for people with no moral sense, but it is certainly not common sense reasoning for those that have any regard for the moral law, on which the laws of church and state are built. Marriage is something more than a loose agreement between two people to live together so long as they find it pleasant and agreeable. Yet in a case like this, when everything in connection with the marriage is wrong, how can one devise a plan to right it all? Two irresponsible young people getting married before they have their own minds and before they could establish any sort

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

BY ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Masters of Bridge

Harold C. Richard, in his hours of business, is engaged as one of the financial leaders of New York city. He does, however, find time, after banking hours are over, to visit one of his favorite Bridge clubs, either Crockett's or the Whist Club, for a few hours of the game. Recently, at Crockett's, he cut as a partner with Walter Beinecke, with whom he has a very splendid partnership. The hand below was the first of the rubber.

The bidding:
South West North East
1♣ Pass 2♣ Pass
2NT Pass 3NT Pass
Pass Pass

The bidding of North and South follows quite generally accepted lines. North's hand is not strong enough for a Forcing Takeout, but it certainly is strong enough to raise partner's suit of two to three to three. West's Opening lead was the spade Queen, which was won by South with the King. The success of the hand depended on the bidding and the play of the cards. The only chance for South would not discover the Machiavellian plot prepared for his discomfiture. The plan worked. South played the heart 2. Mr. Beinecke won with the Ten, and, entering into the spirit of his partner's splendid play, returned the suit and defeated the contract 1 trick. An unusual situation, in which the average player would have abandoned hope, was utilized to turn defeat into victory.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

If you were West with the hand below and had as a partner Theodore A. Lightner, what card would you select as an Opening lead against a contract of seven spades which had been doubled by your partner?

NANCY PAGE

Welt Buttonholes Are Easy To Work.

BY FLORENCE LA GANKE.

Nancy was just finishing a new dress when Joan, it was made of green crepe de chine, draped in. When there was a tiny guimpe with puffed sleeves and gathered neck. The linen dress buttoned with two round green buttons which slipped through welt buttonholes.

The binding on the guimpe was the same linen as that used in the dress. And the guimpe was made of sprigged dimity in white, green and yellow. The welt buttonholes were not hard to make. Nancy followed the directions. During the various stages the buttonhole looked like the drawings below. First, she marked the place where the buttonhole was to be cut and stitched in place as shown in Figure 1.

The stitching makes an oblong box as long as the buttonhole and as wide as two seams.

Now with a sharp pointed scissors she slashed through the center, cutting the ends into forked points or ends. She found this had to be done with care and precision. This operation is shown in Figure 2.

Now the material which has been slashed is turned to the wrong side of the dress.

The pieces are brought exactly to

Child Welfare Association Chairman Calls Attention to Child Health Week

Apologies of Child Health Week to be observed throughout the nation this week, Mrs. Wiley Ballard, chairman of health department for Child Welfare Association of Atlanta, issues the following announcement:

In May, 1928, congress passed a bill asking the president to issue a yearly proclamation on May 1 to have the day and ensuing week set aside in behalf of child health, inviting all agencies and organizations to stress the physical care of the child and unite in the observance of such exercises as will awaken the people of the nation to the fundamental necessity of a year-round program for the protection and development of the health of the nation's children.

Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of the schools of Atlanta, says in regard to the importance of child health:

"No more important work in the entire United States can be undertaken than that of securing a well-known as Child Health Week begins with the first day of May. The object of this week is to begin the summer roundup in order that all children may be healthy, strong and vigorous and ready for vacation growth and prepared to go into school next fall."

"Every child should have a physical examination by a competent physician and a competent dentist, and there should be a follow-up of this examination by the correction of all defects and above all, every child should have the opportunity to be well nurtured, to be provided with proper exercise and education in the right habits that he may continue to develop as a healthy, normal child."

"The great majority of the children born in this world have a fair chance to become physically fit. It is because we allow defects to accumulate and to destroy their physical efficiency that so many of us fail to arrive at proper standards of health. The emphasis of Child Health Week is to see that every child at the very beginning of life shall have a fair start for his physical development. Every parent and every teacher in the entire community should consider it a privilege to take part in this good work."

The HONEYMOON MURDER

BY CAROLYN WELLS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE. Perilla Fairfax and Corey Malden are married at the Long Island summer home of John Lovell, her stepfather. Tony Gaskell, Philadelphia lawyer, is best man, and Bob Coles, a friend of Malcolm Fairfax, Perilla's brother, is usher. Corey, whose home is in Richmond, is very wealthy. He is 38 and Perilla only 24 but it is a true love match. The night before the wedding, Malcolm says he has a headache and asks for aspirin. Tony produces some white tablets, which he says are better, and Corey also takes one. Bob Coles recalls to Perilla his threat that if she marries anyone else he will kill her the bridegroom of himself, but her mother says Bob is only teasing her. The bride couple are entertained elaborately two days later at Washington, where they stop en route for motor car to Richmond. While Perilla is dancing, her partner makes a disparaging remark about Corey's mother. She pleads fatigue. Corey makes her excuses, and when they reach their hotel, Corey takes her in his arms and is saying "Darling, you won't like my mother; she's terrible," when he drops her and she floor dead. She summons her father and Malcolm, who come by plane. A physician says he will give certificate stating that death was the result of natural causes. When Perilla and Mr. Lovell arrive at Malcolm's home late that day, Mrs. Malden's greeting to Perilla is, "You murdered your mother." She enters Perilla's room at a balcony window. Perilla has the old woman's next day Madame Malden sends for him. She professes friendship with Malcolm, but she is really a woman of the world. Farman, her Richmond lawyer, does not disguise his suspicion. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XIV.

"I suppose so," she replied, and then in answer to his beckoning and she rose and left the room with him. "Jane," Malcolm said when they were alone, "there may be—I only say there may be—troubled waters ahead for that girl."

"What sort of trouble?"

"Oh, because that old harridan down in Richmond has an obsession that Perilla killed Corey, her fool of a lawyer, Farman, must needs believe it, too. And Jane, consider the facts. A young girl marries a man 14 years older than herself, who has millions of money, they go off on their wedding trip, and alone in the room with her, he dies. If you, say, disliked the girl, or had a grudge against her, what would be your first thought as to the death of Corey?"

"I suppose you mean I'd lean to the thought that Perilla killed him, somehow or other."

"What for?"

"To inherit his money and have a good time with it."

"Well, there are people ready to look at the matter like that."

"But that's too silly, Malcolm."

"I tell you there are people in Richmond, especially a lot who worship the old Malden family and estates, who would rush to accept the statement falling from the lying lips of the old dame, and the very strange."

Perilla appeared at the door of the small sun parlor where Malcolm and Jane were talking and stood looking out of a window.

The Lovell apartment was on one of the streets of the early nineties, half a block from the avenue.

Perilla's apartment, near by, was on Fifth avenue and was one of the newest of the new houses. Indeed, some of the apartments were not yet finished but Corey had seen to it that they should be put through with dispatch.

"It's just too beautiful," Perilla said, looking gloomily at the others. "I don't see how I can leave alone, and yet, I don't want to live anywhere else."

"No, you couldn't be happy anywhere else," and Jane smiled at her. "Oh, Perilla, there'll be so much to do, even if it's all finished when you go in!"

"Yes, I know, Malcolm. I asked you about your killing, seemingly soon to come off."

"Yes," and Malcolm became serious. "It's that Farman chap, I've a notion he's coming up here—"

"Here?"

"Oh, I don't mean to stay with us here, but he may stay with you if you ask him prettily."

"Let me know when he's coming," said Perilla. "and I'll be out. I'm planning a trip to California, anyway, and I can take it then."

"Perilla, dear, we've got to take up

Farman as a burden, you know. You can't leave him to run around by himself, you know."

For a moment Perilla looked pensive, then she said, "But you told me, Malky, to treat him as if he weren't there. I'm ready to do whatever you say, but you must make it clear."

"I will. Also, Garth is coming over from Philadelphia in a few days. Perhaps they'll hit the same time. I'll have to wait the lot?" Perilla spoke slowly. "Yes, perhaps it would be better. Garth might scare the Farman person, but as I read him, he isn't easily scared. He seems stupid as an owl, and then you learn he's been fooling you. Well, let him come here if he likes but the sole of his shoe shall not contaminate my home. Oh, Jane, the lounge is ideal! So beautifully black and white—"

"I say, Perilla," Malcolm said cheerfully, will the old man take a notion to visit you?"

"Like as not. And if she takes the notion, she'll carry it out. I'm going to try to stay friendly with her. I'll bet she won't make her over, and have her like the ideal mother, a fragile bit of Dresden china, you know."

Malcolm roared, then sobered and said, "It's ten chances to one she'll come at the time Farman selects."

"Yes, I daresay. In that case I'll have to give her the best suit of luck I've got of room. Well, I'll leave you—"

"Wait a minute, Perilla," Malcolm detained her. "Remember not to say a word about Farman to anyone. Nor a word about Madame Malden's."

Malcolm Fairfax, if you tell me once more to keep quiet about her threats, and why I'll leave home! Now, I promise to shut my mouth whenever the subject is mentioned or liable to be mentioned. You think I'm ignoring Farman, Mal; I'm not. I think about him lots. And sometimes, I think we're wasting time and energy worrying about him. Some fires burn themselves out if you let them alone, but if you keep trying to put them out, they burn up more brightly. I have hesitated."

It was November now, and Perilla was settled in her beautiful apartment. While she couldn't be called happy, she was calm and had regained her old-time poise.

Jane was with her, but Jane was a movable feast. Always around when wanted or needed, but never in the way. Much of her time she spent at the Lovells' home, and naturally she kept Ellen Lovell informed of Perilla's progress.

After about a week's separation, "she isn't so good."

"What's the matter with her?" asked the mother.

"It's the matter with her," she said, her grief for Corey, which seems to grow more poignant rather than less. But there's something else. She's absorbed from Richmond, or so she says, she is excited about it, rather than depressed. Lots of people want to come to see her, but she always says, "No, no, no!" It keeps me busy shunting them off. However, whatever it is, it interests her, and that's something."

In the meantime Mrs. Corey Malden was going about the business that interested her so. Garbed in one of her smartest broadcloth gowns, and wearing the becoming fur she sported at Bailey, her new chauffeur, to a number in the east seventies.

Perilla had not kept Byron, but dismissed him as soon as she came home from Richmond, or so she never knew why, and would have been greatly surprised to learn that it was because of the quiver of an eyelash.

Reaching an apartment house, Perilla rang the bell of the suite she wanted. Admitted to a smart, interesting looking living room, she wandered about, instead of seating herself.

Crackers Take Double Header From Little Rock, 5-2 and 7-6; Petrels, Jackets Battle for City Union Title This Afternoon

BAKER, DIXON ARE EXPECTED TO DO PITCHING

Series Begins at 3 at Ponce de Leon Park.

By Jack Troy.

Oglethorpe and Tech will set out today on a two-day quest of the city college baseball title at Ponce de Leon park in their closing series of the season.

Tied at one victory apiece, either the Petrels or the Jackets, fast, hard-fighting clubs, must sweep the series or else leave the honors divided for the year. The state race is still undecided and the winner of the city series will be right up there.

If ever a college series promised keen action and entertainment this one does. The two games at the Rose Bowl, constituting the beginning of the title fight, gave large crowds all the excitement they had hoped for and more.

GOOD BASEBALL

And now that the race has narrowed down to the point where one team or the other must dominate the closing battles, there is certain to be plenty of the kind of baseball the fans pay to see.

The series today and tomorrow is Oglethorpe's home game and the Petrels realize all the proceeds, above expenses. Coach Frank Anderson, a leading inspirational force in the revival of the college game, will cater to Oglethorpe fans, paying the way through funds received in home games. He deserves the town's support.

Today's game begins at 3. Coach Anderson probably will pitch Lefty Dixon and Coach Bobby Dodd is expected to send Cannon Ball Baker to the mound.

Baker has not faced the Petrels this season.

PROMISING BATTLE

It should be a great mound battle, both pitchers having a "fire ball" that is hard to hit. Dixon waves his pitching hand behind his left ear in the manner of a cat, working out with an Indian club before delivering the pitch. It is very disconcerting to the batter.

There is not expected to be any changes in the regular lineups of the two teams. Chasley is expected to pitch for Oglethorpe and Pug Boyd will be behind the bat for Tech.

THE LINEUPS

TECH Pos. OGLETHORPE
Gibson..... Bryant
Harding..... Whitely
S. Martin..... C. Martin
Hogsd..... Fisher

LAKEWOOD MAT SEASON OPENS

The wrestling season at the Lakewood Fair Association grounds will open tonight at 8:30, with Matchmaker Bill Corley offering as his main attraction Red Radcliffe, Cox, High wrestling coach, and Gene Fox, Oglethorpe mat instructor, in a two-hour limit, two-out-of-three-falls match. Middleweights, Radcliffe and Fox are fast and clever wrestlers and always give a maximum of action and thrills. The fans who saw them wrestle to a draw a month ago have expressed a desire to see them in a return match.

Bill Crussell and Bob Rubble, who are so evenly matched that the best they have been able to get out of recent matches was draws, are to wrestle in the semi-windup. This will be a one-hour limit, two-out-of-three-falls match.

This is advertised as a "grudge match" and, according to Matchmaker Corley, who was at one time a well-known southern wrestler, it will be just that.

Two Lakewood Heights stars will wrestle in a 30-minute match. They are A. D. Ford, and Johnny Cox. Ford is a former champion of the state and will also appear in a half-hour engagement.

A new ring, lighting equipment and ring-side seats have been installed at Lakewood, directly in front of the grandstand. There will be plenty of good seats for all.

Admission to the bouts is 50 cents for ringside seats and 25 cents general admission. These prices will remain the same, Corley says, no matter what caliber the wrestlers. The program will be held rain or shine, starting at 8:30. The middleweights will give the fans plenty of entertainment.

Smashup Occurs At Lake Bishop

Troy Wynne, Atlanta speedboat pilot, narrowly escaped serious injury Sunday afternoon at Lake Bishop, just off the Roswell road, in a collision between his and Louis Trotter's boat. The accident occurred in the last lap of a five-mile race, the feature of the afternoon's racing program.

The races were witnessed by more than 1,500 persons and will be resumed Wednesday afternoon.

Just as they were nearing the finish line, Trotter's motor left his boat and crashed into Wynne's boat, causing it to sink. Trotter, thinking that Wynne had been injured, dove into the water to rescue Wynne, but he wasn't hurt. Both boats sank in the lake.

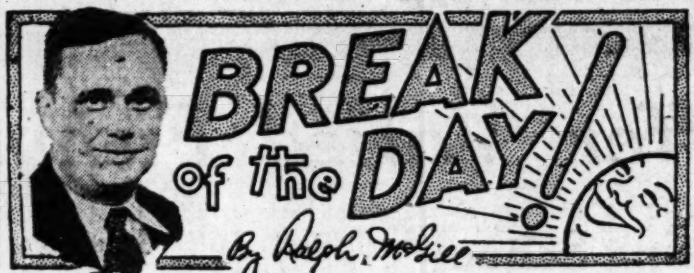

Roy Miller won two out of three races for Class C motors, and Trotter won two out of three races for Class A motors.

There were 15 entries in the races.

Therrell, Cloude Win at Piedmont

D. H. Therrell and Bill Cloude divided first prize Sunday on the Piedmont park course in the finals of a two-day blind park tourney for members of the Piedmont Park Golf Association. J. J. Johnson finished second and R. R. Hendrick and J. F. Shackelford tied for third prize.

MORE THAN 3,000 PRIZES FOR THE BEST JINKYS.

BREAK of the DAY

Aristides, The Little Red Horse, Started Something in 1875

Aristides, "The Little Red Horse," looms large as a Derby legend.

It was he who won the first Kentucky Derby, run in 1875. He was a dream come true to Kentuckians who, strangely enough, had been without the sport of kings for some 20 years.

The Kentucky Derby is run today because of the indefatigable toil of Colonel Lewis Clark and his associates who decided in 1873 that racing could be revived.

There were two brothers interested, John and Henry Churchill. And they presented the grounds for the building of a race track and funds were raised to build a little wooden grandstand.

Colonel Clark went to England and studied the racing conditions there. When he came back he modeled his program after the English running races.

Three thousand people were in the stand to cheer Aristides, the favorite, as he came home on a fast track to win the prodigious sum of $2,850 for his owner, H. P. McGrath. This was May 17, 1875.

The Derby began then and it has been going ever since without interruption. It has grown with incredible speed. Churchill Downs has become one of the most magnificent racing plants in the world, a far cry from the wooden stands and the track on which Aristides ran.

All the old romance has gone from it. The game grew so fast that only the wealthy could survive. It has become the plaything of wealthy sportsmen although there are always a few small owners to saddle horses for the Derby, praying for the turn of the wheel of fate. But try as they will nothing can take the thrill from the big day when the fifth race is called and the best of the three-year-olds go to the post.

Aristides, the Little Red Horse, started something.

THAT WINNING STREAK

One gathered last night, as the hundreds of fans called for the scores, that the Crackers have created something of a mild case of hysteria in this town of ours.

Winning six straight games, capturing two double-headers within the space of four days, and climbing from the very definite baseball basement to fifth place within the space of a week, is something to cause the Cracker fans to become hysterical.

The club is in a much better position than those which started well. The strain was on them too early. The Crackers ate the husks for two weeks and then got going. They are coming from behind and such a team is always tougher to halt than one that is fighting to hold a position.

One keeps trying to forget the 1932 baseball season but one cannot help but recall the winning streak of last year. It reached the total of one straight game.

While I am confident, and have so insisted all along, that the Crackers will be a first division club, this opportunity is too good to pass up. While there is yet time will anyone please order the pennant train for the Texas series.

The look of the month—a look at the Crackers who have taken off their hobbles and started sprinting.

THE SAME OLD CRACKERS, DID YOU SAY?

When the Crackers were caught in the grip of a slump at the opening of the season, and this corner continued faithful, beating the drum and injecting a daily note of hope, there were any number of gentlemen who took the trouble to mail cards and letters of a vitriolic nature.

Their content was "Same old Crackers." "They play their best game in your column." "Why don't you tell the truth and say they are punk instead of all this boost- ing"—these for just a sample.

And today, with the Crackers rushing toward the first division at top speed, I do wish my old pals would write again. It's the same club that couldn't win a week ago. The old, old plea that ball players would run to form, seems to be vindicated again. There is a very grave danger of an "I-told-you-so" if the pace continues.

It's all a lot of good clean fun, this writing dodge, and once the boys think they have you down they let you have it. "Same old Crackers"—well, don't say you weren't warned.

A winning ball club, one which was going somewhere, would very likely have this town of ours by the ears. The people are so pathetically eager to see a winner. One can't blame them for their doubts after that sour start. It appeared to be more of a raw deal than a new deal.

But now it's simply grand. Life has been just a lot of beef bouillon since 1925, but with a winner—Oh, man! I forgive you, pals.

SINGTON CONTINUES

Freddie Sington continues to be very boisterous with the ash, as Mr. Blinky Horn would say. And the boy has the Cracker owners "Sington in the Rain," so to speak.

Because he will be sold for funds of important denomination if he continues to haff the pitchers over the league. The owners are looking for boys with the punch. Sington's hitting in Sunday's contests was powerful. He is rapidly becoming a factor in the home run race.

The Nashville park, as usual, will produce the home run winner. The fly balls sail over the fence there in great numbers. But Sington should be runner-up.

Owners will have to sell some rookies this year to make ends meet. And that is why the Cracker owners hope to just about break even. If their rookies can be sold for substantial sums the attendance can slump a bit. But with a winner—and prize rookies for sale—the season might become a profitable one.

HE'S WELL NOW

Hughes Spalding, the Crackers' legal adviser and one of the directors, spent yesterday his first peaceful week-end since the season started. While the slump was on he left town over the week-ends to avoid the jibes of his friends.

THE MAYOR BLASTS ROBBY

Wilbert Robinson is rubbing brine on his hide each night to toughen it against the blasts of his honor, Mayor James L. Key.

The mayor and Your Uncle Wilbert Robinson sit together each day and his honor, the mayor, puts the blast on him unmercifully when the team is trailing.

There is no sadder soul anywhere when his team is behind than Your Uncle Wilbert Robinson. And when his honor puts on the blast for more hitting, Your Uncle Wilbert gets even sicker.

FOREIGN HORSES AMONG LEADERS FOR MAY DERBY

Trace Call, Knockaway and Mr. Khayyam Are Listed.

By C. Robert Kay.

Associated Press Staff Writer. LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 30.—(AP) The field for the 69th Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs Saturday will be an international thing if the 10 leading candidates as rated by handicappers face the barrier in the $50,000 added classic.

The 10 leaders are W. R. Coe's Lexington, Mrs. William Coe's Head Play, the R. M. Eastman estate's Charley O, F. A. Griffith's Sarada, the Catwaba stable's Mr. Khayyam, Colonel E. R. Bradley's Broke Tip, Leroy Rosenberg's Kerry Patch, Mr. Coe's Pomponious, the Audley farm's Trace Call, and William E. Smith's Knockaway.

Of these, Trace Call and Knockaway are of foreign ancestry, and Mr. Khayyam is the son of Omar Khayyam, winner of the 1917 Derby and the only imported thoroughbred which ever succeeded in accomplishing this feat. Khayyam started the eastern Derby contingent by breaking the track record at Havre de Grace Saturday, racing a mile and a sixteenth in 1:44.

TRACE CALL

Trace Call, who has raced impressively in two races at Havre, finishing second in both of them, was sired by Call Boy, which won the English Derby in 1927. Knockaway, imported from Ireland as a yearling, was an also ran Saturday at Churchill Downs, but this was to be expected as it was the first race in which he ever started. Knockaway did not race as a two-year-old.

The east has a six-to-four edge in this line-up of leaders. Headed by Lexington, the favorite now at odds of 3 to 1, other eastern nominees in the list are Ladyman's stablemate, Pomponious; Sarada, Mr. Khayyam, Kerry Patch and Trace Call. The western "big four" are Head Play, Charley O, Broke's Tip and Knockaway.

There are no fillies among the leading 10, but at Top and Technique, members of that sex, may face the barrier Saturday. There are enough foreign nominees training well to almost assure a record time of more than 22, the mark set in 1928. Head Play, Charley O and Broke's Tip are expected to make their Churchill Downs debut in the prospect of a three-year-old Tuesday.

Head Play has not raced the last of his season, but his second yearling being based on phenomenal workouts. Charley O has not raced since his winter campaign in the south during which he won the Florida Derby. Broke's Tip raced once at Lexington, finishing second.

EASTERN ELIGIBLES

Tuesday also will probably see completion of the list of eastern eligibles which will be shipped from the seaboard to the Downs to vie in the blue ribbon event of American racing. The future hope odds on the 10 leaders, with quotations of Tom Shaw, New York betting commissioner, and Tom Kearney, St. Louis handicapper, follow:

SHAW KEARNEY
Lexington..... 2-1 3-1
Head Play..... 3-1 3-1
Charley O..... 4-1 4-1
Sarada..... 10-1 12-1
Mr. Khayyam..... 10-1 12-1
Broke's Tip..... 20-1 25-1
Kerry Patch..... 30-1 35-1
Pomponious..... 25-1 30-1
Trace Call..... 25-1 30-1

SINGTON CONTINUES

Freddie Sington continues to be very boisterous with the ash, as Mr. Blinky Horn would say. And the boy has the Cracker owners "Sington in the Rain," so to speak.

Because he will be sold for funds of important denomination if he continues to haff the pitchers over the league. The owners are looking for boys with the punch. Sington's hitting in Sunday's contests was powerful. He is rapidly becoming a factor in the home run race.

The Nashville park, as usual, will produce the home run winner. The fly balls sail over the fence there in great numbers. But Sington should be runner-up.

Owners will have to sell some rookies this year to make ends meet. And that is why the Cracker owners hope to just about break even. If their rookies can be sold for substantial sums the attendance can slump a bit. But with a winner—and prize rookies for sale—the season might become a profitable one.

HE'S WELL NOW

Hughes Spalding, the Crackers' legal adviser and one of the directors, spent yesterday his first peaceful week-end since the season started. While the slump was on he left town over the week-ends to avoid the jibes of his friends.

THE MAYOR BLASTS ROBBY

Wilbert Robinson is rubbing brine on his hide each night to toughen it against the blasts of his honor, Mayor James L. Key.

The mayor and Your Uncle Wilbert Robinson sit together each day and his honor, the mayor, puts the blast on him unmercifully when the team is trailing.

There is no sadder soul anywhere when his team is behind than Your Uncle Wilbert Robinson. And when his honor puts on the blast for more hitting, Your Uncle Wilbert gets even sicker.

CLEVELAND, April 30.—(AP)—A home run by Ralph Kress in the fourth inning helped Chicago to a 3-0 victory over the Cleveland Indians today. Kress hit to the left field stands and drove in Appling, who had singled.

Paul Gregory held the Indians to six hits and won his first game of the season. Clint Brown, who had a row for the Indians, suffered his first defeat.

Cleveland's lone run was made in the sixth, when Brown singled and Burnett doubled.

Rivers, Lakes and Tidewaters of Georgia Offer Varied Fishing Thrills

WALTHOUR & HOOD PREPARED TO FILL NEEDS OF ANGLERS

Sporting Goods House
Carries All Supplies for Fisherman; State Regulations Lenient.

"What would you rather do or go fishing?"

Ancient though it is, there never has been but one reply to the question. It's "go fishing!"

With spring well past its fledgling stage and Georgia's rivers, creeks, lakes, ponds and tidewaters teeming with finny game, the fever is among us and thousands of sportsmen daily are lining those banks.

Whether he likes to fish in cold mountain streams, coastal waters or in lazy rivers or still waters, the angler will find within the bounds of Georgia all he could desire.

Whether he uses rod and reel and myriad types of fancy flies, wigglers and minnows, or a tackle box boasting only a spool of line, bottle cork, lead sinkers and a nondescript assortment of hooks, he will find within easy reach of Atlanta a variety of fishing suited to his wishes.

Walthour & Hood Company, one of the south's foremost sporting goods houses, situated at 52-54 Forsyth street, S. W., is prepared to fill every need of the fisherman, whether his activities are planned for mountain stream, the deep sea or intermediate waters.

Fishermen are especially invited by H. E. Short, secretary and treasurer of Walthour & Hood, to bring their tackle boxes to the Forsyth street store, pointing out that no charge is made for cleaning and oiling reels and other tackle. They also are invited to make Walthour & Hood their headquarters for re-equipment or completion of their tackle boxes.

For the fisherman whose means of transportation are limited, Mr. Short lists a number of excellent fishing places within a short distance of Atlanta. Some of these he lists as follows:

Lee's Mill, near Union City (bream, catfish and others); Powder creek, near Powder Springs, and Noyes and Mud creeks, in Cobb county (bream); South River lakes, near Constitution Ga. (carp, bream, catfish); Sweetwater creek, DeKalb and counties; Black Rock lake, 15 miles from Atlanta; Altoona creek, Cobb county; Knowles creek, near Mableton, Douglas county; Flint river, near Fayetteville; Chattahoochee river, near Union City; Venable's lake, near Stone Mountain; Yellow Jacket creek, near Tucker, and the lakes of Jackson county.

Of these and others listed, some are private grounds, permits or fees being required. Information on these may be obtained at any time from the department of fish and game, at the state capital.

In this connection, attention also is called to The Constitution's fishing calendar, prepared with a view to directing the fishermen in his plans for fishing. Copies may be obtained at any time by request to The Constitution sports department.

The department of fish and game also lists practically every available fishing river, creek, pond or lake from extreme north to Georgia's Florida boundary, together with much other interesting and necessary information, in a booklet entitled "Fishing in Georgia," which may be obtained through Walthour & Hood.

To quote from Peter S. Twitty, state fish and game commissioner, in this booklet:

"There is no state in the Union that offers to the angler a greater variety of sport fishing than can be found in Georgia. Literally thousands of miles of splashing, swift, clear water rivers and creeks, wind their course around the picturesque mountainsides of north Georgia, and furnish an abundance of rainbow and brook trout; the larger streams and their tributaries of middle and south Georgia, which find their way to the Gulf of Mexico or the Atlantic, are teeming with bass, bream, perch and other species; and along Georgia's marvelous coast, where the rare climate the year round is unexcelled, there is a great diversity of thrilling salt water fishing; for such species as channel bass or red fish, school bass, win-

Would You Pass Up Such Sport?

While not Georgia products, these giant jewfish, weighing 800 and 600 pounds, may be caught not too far distant for the eager angler. They were captured during a deep-sea fishing trip off Daytona Beach, Fla., by Palmer Walthour and his nephew, Ray, pictured with them. The coastal waters of Georgia offer smaller but equally sporty game, and the state's numerous streams and still waters abound in finny game also.

NUMEROUS LOSSES BOND LIST SHOWS REGAINED BY CURB UPWARD TENDENCY

Prices Undergo Technical Reaction After Bulge of Previous Week.

By JOHN L. COOLEY.
NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP)—The curb market wound up last week with a lively advance which served to cancel a considerable part of losses sustained earlier as prices underwent technical reaction from the previous week's bulge.

Realizing and professional selling had left the leaders, particularly in the industrial-commodity groups, in a good position to respond to the senate's adoption of the farm relief inflation bill late Friday.

With this event traders renewed their interest in mining, food, oil, chemical and a miscellany of industrial shares, and prices were lifted sharply above the week's lows.

Such issues as Aluminum Co. of America, Newmont Mining, Deere & Co., Singer Manufacturing, A. O. Smith, Bunker Hill & Sullivan Mining, Great Atlantic & Pacific enjoyed recoveries running from 2 to 6 points, but most of them ended the week somewhat below the levels of the previous period.

"Our commonwealth imposes on the fishermen in this state fewer restrictions than in most states, far more moderate regulations than in many states, and less of legal requirements than in probably any state in the Union. It bids to its citizens, and to his friend from elsewhere, a cordial welcome and asks of him little else than that he be a true sportsman, and have a non for the happiness and also of his fellowman, and to remember that a sportsmanlike conservation makes for the continuity of that happiness in the future years."

Walthour & Hood is prepared to fulfill all needs for this sport of sports. Reels, from the simplest and most inexpensive to the finest made, are on hand at all times, and a complete line of parts is carried for quick repairs. The same applies to rods, of which there is a varied assortment in bamboo and True Temper metal of all weights and standard lengths, suitable for every type of fishing.

Flies, wigglers, minnows and varied other lures, including pork rind strips, are available in wide variety. In addition, Walthour & Hood carries a complete stock of lines, tackle boxes, minnow buckets and traps, hooks, leads and countless other accessories.

LONGS LIQUIDATE AS COTTON FALLS AT END OF WEEK

Market Closes Below Last
Level of Previous Week
Despite Sharp Gains in Early Days.

NEW ORLEANS, April 30.—(AP)—While trading in the cotton market was active early in the week owing to the number of inflationary measures proposed at Washington and prices made new high levels for the movement and the calendar year at 7.75 for July and 8.01 for October or 34 to 35 points above the closing levels of a week ago, the market became quieter later in the week owing to the delays in the senate in passing the measures before it.

This falling off in the buying power caused tired longs to liquidate and prices lost all of the previous gain dropping to levels 7 to 8 points below the close of the preceding week. As the week closed, however, there was a sharp rally of practically a dollar and a quarter a bale which carried prices above the high levels of the movement reached on Monday, to net gain of 32 points.

The declining tendency of the market during the middle of the week was held in check by a bullish weekly weather and crop report. According to this report farm work and planting had been very much delayed by too much rain in the central belt and dry weather in the western belt. It was claimed that where plants were in the stands were poor and much replanting was necessary.

While the demand for spots continued active in early week, there was a distinct falling off later owing to disappointment at the delays at Washington. The demand for export was checked by the fluctuations in foreign exchange, particularly sterling. It is believed, however, that the foreign demand will improve as soon as Congress finally acts on the currency inflation measures.

Exports during the past week have been fair and show less loss compared with last season than for some weeks past. Stocks on shipboard at the leading gulf ports are now larger than a year ago, pointing to better exports during the coming week.

High, low and closing sales compared with a year ago follow:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Last
May	7.71	7.51	7.71	5.45
July	7.95	7.83	7.95	5.50
Oct.	8.08	7.57	8.06	5.81
Dec.	8.25	7.72	8.24	5.96

NEW YORK CLOSING WEEK
WITH SHARP ADVANCES
NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP)—Reacting in the same manner as other commodities to the senate's adoption of the farm relief bill with its currency inflation amendments, cotton closed the week with a sharp upswing in prices.

In a rush of buying from widely scattered sources contracts were lifted about $2 a bale. Earlier in the week, however, the market had been reactionary, so that the final levels on Saturday stood $1.25 to $1.50 a bale above those at the previous week-end.

Some textile interests estimated that actual business in cotton goods fell below that of the previous week, and to the trade this seemed logical in view of the sharp advance in prices, and the disinclination of sellers to accept orders for forward shipments because of factors bearing on future production costs.

Prices were generally firm except for slight concessions. Quotations for 38 1-2 inch 64-60s print cloths advanced to 4 cents a yard early in the week, reaching about 1-8 cent on Friday. This compared with 3 3-4 to 3 7-8 cents at the previous week-end.

will not become effective before early July.

Cotton goods prices advanced steadily during the past week and buying for nearby delivery has, in many cases, developed a real scarcity of goods. Prices are firm with moderate inquiry for additional goods at current prices. The industry as a whole is limiting sales to June 15 or June 30 delivery, unless the contract includes labor cost clause.

During the past week the mills which we represent have sold a substantial yardage of narrow sheetings, colored goods, towels and wide fabrics. Print cloths, broadcloths, narrow drills and towels have sold moderate quantities.—Southeastern Cottons, Inc.

5-Day Egg-Cooking School To Be Conducted at Sterchi's

Demonstration of Detroit
Jewel Ranges To Accompany
Kitchen Clinic by Mrs. Hardeman.

Americans, who lead the world in efficient machinery and who pride themselves on their sense of importance of proper equipment in office and factory, are paying a great deal of attention just now to the importance of the kitchen, the workshop of one-third of the nation, according to the bureau of home economics of the United States department of agriculture. Until quite recently no one considered the kitchen worthy of study, leaving its many problems to the housewife.

The most effective ways of securing household efficiency places the kitchen of today in a realm of its own. Adequate equipment, which is the very last word in efficiency and beauty, gives the modern housewife an attractive kitchen in which to work as well as every help to remove the drudgery of olden days.

Beginning Tuesday, May 2, and continuing through May 5, a special demonstration of Detroit Jewel gas ranges will be featured in connection with an egg-cooking school to be held every morning, beginning at 10 o'clock, in the clubroom on the fifth floor of Sterchi Brothers Stores, Inc., 116-120 Whitehall street.

Mrs. J. A. Hardman will be in charge of the school, assisted by Miss Katherine Lanier and Miss Anne Kilpatrick, of the home demonstration department of the Georgia State College of Agriculture, Athens.

This special feature is in observance of National Egg Week, to be observed May 1 to 6, inclusive. Difficult egg dishes will be prepared, such as meringues, egg custards, omelets, souffles and others.

The value of eggs in the diet is one of recognized importance, building muscle and supplying the necessary vitamins and valuable minerals which the healthy body requires. The use of quality Georgia eggs will be stressed at the egg-cooking school.

Every woman who has spent much time in her kitchen knows that egg dishes well made are among the most difficult problems in cookery. With the use of the Detroit Jewel gas range, equipped with heat control and with perfect oven insulation, all the guesswork is taken out of cooking and assured success is the result.

A number of prizes will be given away at the egg-cooking school, including a Detroit Jewel gas range, Philco radio, lounge chair, Crosley radio, table lamp, 32-piece dinner service, set of silver and aluminum ware. The public is invited to attend.

The rush of buying which developed during the closing weeks of April resulted in a sharp reduction in surplus stocks of rayon yarns at the close of the month, bringing the total down to not more than two or three weeks' supply, says the Textile Gazette, published by the Tubize Chailion Corporation.

New municipal financing scheduled for next week totals only $3,429,255, as compared with $16,822,167 during the past week, says The Daily Bond Buyer.

Lumbering activities will be revived this summer in northeastern Minnesota for the first time in more than two years. H. C. Hornby, general manager of the Eyrichsen Lumbering interests reports in announcements that several hundred men will be hired.

Three thousand former employees of the Plymouth Motor Company plant at Detroit were put back to work this month, increasing employment 100 per cent over March, B. E. Announces.

Exportation of low-priced automobiles increased 202 per cent in number and 168 per cent in value in the quarter ended in March over the last quarter of 1932, the department of commerce announces.

Roy D. Chapin, chairman of the Hudson Motor Car Company, announces that production was doubled in April on a substantial improvement in car sales, which, for the first quarter this year, were 41 per cent ahead of the first quarter last year.

Five plants of the Maryland Overall Company in Virginia have changed from one 10-hour shift to two 8-hour shifts and added 200 employees. The move, according to a report from the Maryland house of representatives, is the result of orders have increased since the bank holiday.

The Marietta Steel Boat Building plant at Point Pleasant, W. Va., has received a million dollar contract to build two United States dredges for use on the Mississippi river. Five hundred men will be employed until November to fill the contract.

The Tubize Chailion Corporation, it is announced, has reacquired by outright purchase from the New Jersey Zinc Co., Inc., all American, Canadian and European patents covering the delustring of artificial silk or rayon by the use of pigments, which were recently awarded to the zinc company in litigation brought to establish their ownership.

Steel Mill Operations Highest Since End of '31

CLEVELAND, April 30.—(AP)—Steel mills now operating at 29 per cent of capacity may cross 30 per cent this week, for the first time since November, 1931, the magazine Steel said today.

Operations during April were doubled, but may cease to be expected to supply another 100 per cent increase in the operating rate, the magazine continued in its weekly review.

However, growing demands "for practically all iron and steel products, a decidedly stronger tone in prices, and the reinforcement that railroads and additional miscellaneous consumers are beginning to throw behind the automotive industry insure further substantial improvement," the magazine said.

Every woman who has spent much time in her kitchen knows that egg dishes well made are among the most difficult problems in cookery. Steel Mill Operations Highest Since End of '31

CLEVELAND, April 30.—(AP)—Steel mills now operating at 29 per cent of capacity may cross 30 per cent this week, for the first time since November, 1931, the magazine Steel said today.

Operations during April were doubled, but may cease to be expected to supply another 100 per cent increase in the operating rate, the magazine continued in its weekly review.

However, growing demands "for practically all iron and steel products, a decidedly stronger tone in prices, and the reinforcement that railroads and additional miscellaneous consumers are beginning to throw behind the automotive industry insure further substantial improvement," the magazine said.

Every woman who has spent much time in her kitchen knows that egg dishes well made are among the most difficult problems in cookery. With the use of the Detroit Jewel gas range, equipped with heat control and with perfect oven insulation, all the guesswork is taken out of cooking and assured success is the result.

A number of prizes will be given away at the egg-cooking school, including a Detroit Jewel gas range, Philco radio, lounge chair, Crosley radio, table lamp, 32-piece dinner service, set of silver and aluminum ware. The public is invited to attend.

The rush of buying which developed during the closing weeks of April resulted in a sharp reduction in surplus stocks of rayon yarns at the close of the month, bringing the total down to not more than two or three weeks' supply, says the Textile Gazette, published by the Tubize Chailion Corporation.

New municipal financing scheduled for next week totals only $3,429,255, as compared with $16,822,167 during the past week, says The Daily Bond Buyer.

Lumbering activities will be revived this summer in northeastern Minnesota for the first time in more than two years. H. C. Hornby, general manager of the Eyrichsen Lumbering interests reports in announcements that several hundred men will be hired.

Three thousand former employees of the Plymouth Motor Company plant at Detroit were put back to work this month, increasing employment 100 per cent over March, B. E. Announces.

Exportation of low-priced automobiles increased 202 per cent in number and 168 per cent in value in the quarter ended in March over the last quarter of 1932, the department of commerce announces.

Roy D. Chapin, chairman of the Hudson Motor Car Company, announces that production was doubled in April on a substantial improvement in car sales, which, for the first quarter this year, were 41 per cent ahead of the first quarter last year.

Five plants of the Maryland Overall Company in Virginia have changed from one 10-hour shift to two 8-hour shifts and added 200 employees. The move, according to a report from the Maryland house of representatives, is the result of orders have increased since the bank holiday.

BUSINESS SCORES SUBSTANTIAL GAIN DURING PAST WEEK

General Industrial Activity
Reflects Evidence of Steady Rise in Commodity Prices.

By HIRAM HERTELL.
NEW YORK, April 30.—(AP)—The record clearly shows that business scored another robust gain during the past week.

With increasing optimism, trade leaders enjoyed the exhilarating experience of watching the barometer chart a substantial expansion in general industrial activity.

Whatever may be the ultimate result, there is, at the moment ample evidence that the rise in commodity prices which has accompanied the fall of the dollar in the world markets has been a spur to enlarged sales totals.

Conspicuous in this respect last week were two key industries, steel and automobiles. In both cases substantial advances were chalked up, while electric power production also registered more than seasonal gain.

In the steel division, production last week rose to 29 per cent of capacity, comparing with 14 per cent at the beginning of April, according to Steel, which says production for the coming week is scheduled to show a further gain. This means that the output during the month has practically doubled.

The improved banking situation throughout the country, coupled with broadening confidence, has unleashed added buying power of which the automobile industry was quick to take advantage.

TARZAN THE APE MAN No. 31

As they saw the wide river barring the way, the elephant tripped. But with any luck we'll pick them up on the other side." Shortly, the winding path brought the safari to a view of the river and a startling sight.

Close off the bank were several large hippopotami. "Father, without prejudice, would you say that was a friendly noise?" As though answering to the contrary, the leader hippopotamus repeated his cry of warning again. Riano pointed downstream.

True to form, trying to hide this, she remarked facetiously: "Father, without prejudice, would you say that was a friendly noise?" As though answering to the contrary, the leader hippopotamus repeated his cry of warning again. Riano pointed downstream.

As the others looked there, they saw two hippos apparently starting to come out of the water. "Watch out," he cried, suddenly grabbing Jean and pushing her behind him. "We're in for it!" "Riano!" called Parker sharply.
